Paramount Center at Emerson College
 Boston, MA

“The Paramount Center is a significant landmark in our city and an anchor in our vibrant downtown and Theatre District. . . .many future generations of Boston residents and visitors will be able to experience this historic and beautiful theater.”

Thomas M. Menino, Mayor of Boston

“This new facility provided Emerson College students, and the Boston arts community at large, with a new and vibrant performance space of which we should all be proud.”

John Walden, Construction Director, Emerson College

“This is what makes good cities: the juxtaposition of new and old in one place, so you feel connected to history while you look forward to the future. Paramount Center embodies the wonderful urban paradox in which memory meets invention, the old and new converse with each other.”

Robert Campbell, The Boston Globe, March 7, 2010

The Joan Sayward Franklin Theater at the Waynflete School
 Portland, ME

“The space was designed to have superior acoustics for theater, voice, and teacher presentations. In our experience using the space this past year, we have found the acoustics to be among the best of any theater in this area. Microphones are rarely required for school assemblies or presentations as it is so easy to hear people onstage. I was truly amazed the first time I heard the school string assemble onstage at the clarity and range of sound that the room provides.”

Dramatic Arts Coordinator, Waynflete School

The Spruce Peak Performing Arts Center
 Stowe, VT

Referring to Stowe, “It’s a great place to ski, and now a great place to play. Nice room.”

James Taylor, Singer/Songwriter
